A dozen times a day or mare
A little foot comes to my doar,
And the 1 bid, "come in," "stay out,"
A little face with simb or pout.
With ever as blue as gentian bells,
And the issue puts as sea loved shells,
And had the issue puts as sea loved shells,
And had it stays where ere it lists,
And houds with dimples kissed and alseed,
I see and countless counting budy charms,
And then my queen is in my arms.

They fall so fast I cannot speak.
The kisses on my eyes and check.
And taggled hard weaves in the brown,
And daughed hards hale some or frown.
And then with "heg" and kiss the last,
And treatte paid for service asked,
I stop to the a wanton shoe.
Or vexing knot in string undo,
Or braid a strand of strangling heir,
To save my lady from deep.ar;
Put here and there a pin or two,
To make a rent as good as new;
Or kies a hurt on hand or face,
Or leash away a trouble trace;
Or flow her Adam for his Arc. Or kirs a hurt on hand or face,
Or brush away a trouble trace;
Or flud her Adam for his Ark,
(fleat doubtlessly upon a larke)
Or teir 'Bo Peep' or "Nimble Dick."
Or "Witch Who Rode a Brauchle Stick:"
Or mend a wheel in some oid "sluy,"
That days ago had seen its day;
Or rock her "Simple Simon" lad,
(Who when he's bad is rough beld;
Or do a hundred thiers and one,
That never "stay" when they are done,—
And then she's down and off again,
And I take up my waiting pen.

But 0 my thoughts, where have you flown?
And 0 my rhymes, where have you cone?
And where my plan, and where my plot;
That I so diligent had wrought?
And where my hero, where my mail?
And cuming scheme so de fily lad?
They're gone—and the my ink wel pen
Is waiting for those mails and men
To ren'her their account to me,
I only see, and see, and see
My little girl within the door. My little girl within the door.

And hear her foot fail on the floor.

And be it thus; my callow rhyme.
And balling verse, half out of time,
The world will never want or mess,
And ignorance shall be its leies.
And other men with happier way
Will say the thought. I tried to say;
And other lips with sones will ring
What I could fee, but could not sing.
But the the world stood still as night,
To hear the verses I might write.
An the my sones should always live.
